Quick Reference Card

Using Your ComicWorks Disks

Because we wanted to pack as much power into the three disks as possible, there isn't a lot of room left on any of them. The following information will allow you to set up custom ComicWorks work disks to suit your particular needs. Before you do anything else, though, back up your disks! Follow the instructions in your Macintosh™ users manual to make copies of all three disks and then put the originals away for safe-keeping.

Using ComicWorks on 400K Drives

ComicWorks will work fine for you on 400K drives, but there are some things you can do to make life a little easier. First off, the ComicWorks System Disk is almost full. It is, in fact, too full to allow Best mode printing to the Imagewriter. You can free up space in a number of ways.

1) Move PosterMaker™ to a separate disk. This works fine, but be sure to have the disk containing PosterMaker in one of your drives when you select PosterMaker™ from the File menu.

2) Create a special System disk by copying the System Folder from the ComicWorks System Disk to another disk. Copy ComicWorks and PosterMaker to a separate disk. This will give you enough room on either disk to store some documents, as well as allow you to print in the Best mode. You will also be able to install the LaserWriter drivers on the new System disk, if you need to.

Using ComicWorks on 800K Drives

ComicWorks works under HFS, and comes with the most current system software available, so it will run on your 800K floppies. All of the suggestions regarding 400K drives apply, but of course you can fit System files, ComicWorks, all the fonts and desk accessories you want, plus Imagewriter and LaserWriter drivers all on one disk, and the entire art library on another.

Using ComicWorks on a Hard Disk

All you need to do to run ComicWorks from a hard disk is to copy the ComicWorks and PosterMaker applications to the same volume (or folder) on the hard disk. If your disk allows multiple system files, then you should copy the system folder from the ComicWorks System Disk to your hard disk as well. If you have only one system file for your entire hard disk, then you will need to use Apple's Font/Desk Accessory Mover to copy the Art Grabber+ desk accessory and the Comic, Commando, and Crypt fonts from the system file on the ComicWorks System Disk into your hard disk's system file. You may also wish to use an FKEY installer or ResEdit to copy FKEY 6 from the ComicWorks system into your hard disk's system.

Panels: Use the New Panel tool to draw a panel in the document window. The panel holds easels (art) and balloons (text).

Easels: Use the New Easel tool to draw an easel in a selected panel. The easel is a graphics area owned by a panel. All art tools work inside easels. If you draw a new easel without first selecting a panel, a new panel will be created to hold it.

Balloons: Use the New Balloon tool to draw a balloon in a selected panel. The balloon is a text area owned by a panel. All text editing tools and commands work inside balloons.

Remember: You cannot draw directly on the page. To draw or type, first create a panel, then create an easel for drawing or a balloon for typing.

YES! I LOVE COMICWORKS! BUT I HAVE WORK TO DO TOO!

ComicWorks is a very special program, and a lot of care went into the templates that come with the program, but sometimes you have to buckle down and get to work. So we are making available to purchasers of ComicWorks the art from its sister program, GraphicWorks. The art and templates on the disk run the range from newsletters, business forms, ads, storyboards and the like all the way to greeting cards, flyers, and product brochures. The cost is $19.95 per disk.
