MacWrite™ offers the features you need in a word-processing program. Plus all the benefits of the Macintosh™ personal computer. MacWrite gives you these advantages:

- Provides a flexible writing tool. Even if you've never used a computer or a word-processing program before, you'll find it easy to create a MacWrite document. Using just the mouse pointing device and pull-down menus on the Macintosh screen, you can quickly move words, paragraphs, entire sections anywhere within your document. Replace every occurrence of a word or group of words with another term. And more.
- Gives your documents a professional look. MacWrite lets you put your words in different typefaces and sizes. In styles such as boldface, italic, and underlined. In superscripts and subscripts. And in 217 foreign and scientific characters. What's more, you can align text left or right, center it, or justify it. And add headers and footers to your documents.
- Lets you write everything from a short memo to a lengthy business plan. MacWrite documents can be up to 240 pages long.
- Enables you to communicate more effectively. MacWrite works with other Macintosh programs, so you can enhance your memos and presentations with illustrations created with MacPaint™, MacDraw™, and other Macintosh graphics programs. Complete your business plan with data from a Macintosh spreadsheet program, such as Microsoft Excel. Document your reports with information received via MacTerminal™. Or use a mail-merge program to turn one letter into hundreds of personalized letters.
