This is shareware.

This is part four of MovieTrilogy.

[ This document is created by DesktopText part of MovieTrilogy, you can view it with SimpleText.]

- ScreenMovie record your monitor screen into a QuickTime Movie.
- Record audio up to 16bit 48KHz stereo.
- If you have QuickTime 2.0 and QuickTime Musical Instruments, you can also record MIDI track.
- Make QuickTime movie with commentary for training purposes.
- Record MIDI sequence while sing into the microphone.
- Include PPC and 68K versions.

What's new in 1.1.2?

- Change default compression setting to enable temporal compression.

What's new in 1.1.1?

- Fixed a bug in the PPC version, was crashing when video component fail to register.

System Requirements

- System 7 or later.
- QuickTime 1.6.1 or later. Some features required QuickTime 2.0.
- MIDI Manager is required for MIDI recording.
- ScreenMovie68K work on both 68K and PPC Mac.
- ScreenMoviePPC is PowerMac Native.

Quick Start:

- 1) Choose Record Video/Record Sound/Record MIDI to indicate what you want to record. You can chose more than one. Choose Record Sound and choose mic in Sound Control Pannel will record your voice.
  - 2) Set the related settings to whatever you want. Just don't expect to capture 24bit full screen while running another CPU intensive program. ;-) Be reasonable!
  - 3) Choose New Movie to specify the movie file to record to. (This also put ScreenMovie in standby mode. You cannot change any setting.)
  - 4) When you are ready. Choose Start Recording.
  - 5) Switch to another program and do whatever you want to be recorded.
- [Tips : You can record your screen saver into a movie. Set your screen saver to move slow. Speed up the movie with DesktopMovie later.]
- 6) Choose Stop Recording.
  - 7) Choose Close Movie.

8) You can now use any movie player to play the movie.

FAQ

Q: How can I subtitle video?

A: To do subtitling:

- 1) Prepare your script in DeskTopText. Make a text movie subtitle track.
  - 2) Connect your VCR/LD to the video in. Play something!
  - 3) Run DeskTopTV, and chose white as transparent color.
  - 4) Play the text movie in DeskTopMovie in front of DeskTopTV.
  - 5) For recording, connect a TV monitor and VCR to the video out.
- You can also subtitle a QuickTime movie by adding the text track to any movie with the "Add Movie in parallel" function in DeskTopMovie.
